the Status of Women

Dear Colleagues:

Within a generation, we have seen the level of violence within our society increase dramatically. Nowhere has this been more evident or alarming than in the increase in violent acts directed against women. In this context, I am pleased to share with you "Violence Prevention Materials in the Schools, A National Listing".

Federal/Provincial/Territorial Ministers responsible for the Status of Women have identified violence against women as one of the most critical issues facing women and men today. Through their participation in a number of initiatives, Ministers responsible are attempting to address the urgency of this complex social issue.

Ultimately, all initiatives aim to "break the cycle" of violence. One means which holds great potential through which this can be achieved is education. Educating our children about the issue of violence is an enormous task and one which must be shared by all Canadians. Education systems across the country have begun to meet this challenge through the introduction of curricula designed to foster positive self-esteem, respect for self and others, and the development of peaceful conflict resolution skills. Through informal polling, we discovered the existence of what amounts to an active and thriving grass roots movement among Canadian educators and service providers. In fact, many individuals and organizations have begun to supplement such curricula with materials that speak directly to the issue and prevention of violence.

Through the committed efforts of shelters, teachers, and counsellors, a considerable volume of material has been developed or identified for use in the discussion of violence with our youth. Given the extent of information available, the Manitoba Women's Directorate decided to compile and share the results of this grass roots sampling.

It is our hope that "Violence Prevention Materials in the Schools, A National Listing" will help to promote continued cooperation and exchange of information among practitioners concerned about the necessity for greater education in addressing the elimination of violence within our society.

Sincerely,

Bonnie Mitchelson

PREFACE

1) Rationale

The increase in violent behaviour within our society during the last quarter century represents a most disturbing trend. As its prevalence expands, violence gains legitimacy as a method of conflict resolution. All too frequently, the messages we receive via the courts and the media reinforce this legitimacy and tend to promote complacency about the issue.

Perhaps it is the complacency or outright acceptance of violence as a simple fact of life that is most alarming. Often, we hold the victim responsible for having been the victim of violent behaviour. We tend to think that if only the victim had behaved differently in some way, the violence could have been avoided. In fact, such thinking illustrates how deep the acceptance of violence as a legitimate form of conflict resolution has become.

Members of our society increasingly find their actions and lives constrained by the ever-present fear of violence. Personal freedom has been seriously curtailed as women, visible minorities, Aboriginal people, homosexuals, differently abled individuals, and others feel their movements controlled by the fear of violence.

Federal/Provincial/Territorial Ministers responsible for the Status of Women are most concerned about the increase in violence within our culture, particularly violence against women. As with many complex social issues, increased awareness and education are crucial to the understanding and ultimate elimination of violence as a social tool.

As with many other emerging social issues, the alarming increase in the incidence of violence has overtaken the system's ability to respond swiftly. Despite recent attempts by various levels of government to raise the profile of the issue and to support initiatives that work towards its elimination, violence directed against women within our society remains acute and pervasive. It is an issue which affects us all. It restricts our movement, undermines our sense of self-confidence and autonomy, and fosters acceptance of force and violence in our relationships rather than open communication, understanding, mutual respect, and compassion.

The elimination of violence within society, and particularly violence against women, is a responsibility that must be shared by all Canadians. It is unrealistic and ultimately detrimental to assume that this issue can be neatly resolved through government intervention alone. Canadians, as individuals, must address the issue of violence within our society. Through education and dialogue, we must be encouraged to accept responsibility for our own actions and to explore our ability to make choices in the resolution of conflict.

The challenge of such an educational undertaking is currently being shared by countless individuals, organizations, and agencies across Canada. Although education is required at a number of levels, nowhere does the immediate introduction of violence prevention materials seem more urgent than at the level of our youth. Nowhere is there greater promise of breaking the cycle of violence. Through comprehensive discussion throughout their lives at school and elsewhere, children can be encouraged to develop positive communication and conflict resolution skills. Given an environment which fosters positive self image and respect for others, students can learn to choose and accept responsibility for their actions.

In support of such educational initiatives across the country, the Manitoba Women's Directorate has compiled a partial listing of those violence awareness and prevention materials currently in use in Canadian schools. It is our hope that such a compendium will help to reinforce the awareness of the necessity for the inclusion of violence prevention as a topic within school curricula across the country. The sharing of resources and knowledge is essential to the development of a comprehensive strategy which teaches respect for ourselves and for others and which holds the promise for a future free from violence.

iii) Methodology

Given the emphasis on the role of the school system to effect a positive change in attitudes and behaviour, the release of "Violence Prevention Materials in the Schools, a National Listing" was prepared to coincide with the annual meeting of the Council of Ministers of Education Canada.

The listing was designed to present a snapshot of the activity currently underway across Canada with specific emphasis placed upon identifying activity at the grass roots level. It is at the level of individual counsellors, shelters, resource centres, and teachers where contact with children and students is direct. Innovative responses to address the issue of violence have developed throughout these networks and have contributed greatly to an increased awareness of the need for a broad-based educational approach to addressing this complex issue.

Federal/Provincial/Territorial Status of Women representatives were contacted in the spring of 1991, to provide information regarding relevant contacts within their jurisdictions. The resulting list formed the bulk of the organizations/individuals contacted. The contact letter, sent in April/May 1991, requested information "about any violence prevention materials currently used in Canadian schools, particularly with respect to domestic violence and date violence". A response was requested from anyone who had been involved in the development and introduction of such materials, as well as from anyone who used/endorsed materials developed elsewhere. Submissions ranged from actual curriculum components and classroom materials to pamphlets, videos, etc. Information regarding availability, cost, the implementation of programs, length of operation, effectiveness, etc. was also requested.

It should be noted that this compilation does not pretend to represent an exhaustive list of available materials for use in Canadian schools. Many contacts did not respond to the request for information. Where responses were received, the information was presented in a variety of form and detail. In addition, a more comprehensive initial mailing, one that contacted all school divisions across the country, was simply not viable at this time given the constraints of time and resources.

"Violence Prevention Materials in the Schools, A National Listing" aims to enhance the awareness of the need for the sharing of resources and strategies to address the serious issue of violence within our society. Many educators, concerned about the alarming increase in violent behaviour within our schools as well as in society as a whole, have found themselves compelled to confront this issue. Through their concern and commitment, such educators are making an invaluable contribution to our future and the quality of life of our children.

Hopefully, the sharing of resources will further foster the dialogue and cooperation that has been focussed on the issue of violence within our society.

PREFACE

The following should be noted:

- i) Information responses continued to trickle in right up to the time this compilation went to print. As a result, there may be some information which was received but which does not appear in this publication;
- ii) Information as to copyright requirements/limitations are included only for those respondents who specified such restrictions. The Province of Manitoba accepts no liability for the omission of such information;
- iii) Submissions were received in a variety of formats; consistency of presentation and detail was attempted wherever possible;
- iv) No evaluation of the material submitted was undertaken; the inclusion of any particular entry should not be taken as endorsement by the Province of Manitoba.
- v) The entries contained in the listing represent a wide variety of materials which may or may not have been given official ministerial approval for province-wide distribution (by the respective provincial Departments of Education). The materials, which have been identified and/or developed by individual counsellors, teachers, and service providers, have often been introduced into the classroom to supplement existing curricula.

Finally, the Manitoba Women's Directorate would like to thank the Federal/Provincial/Territorial Ministers responsible for the Status of Women, staff of provincial Ministries of Education, as well as all colleagues who provided information, names and addresses, leads, etc. that contributed to the compilation of this listing. Our appreciation also extends to all those individuals: teachers, counsellors, and service providers, who took the time and effort to respond to our request and to provide such valuable information.

It is our intention that this document be updated on a regular basis. We envision the production of a revised edition which would include subsequently identified materials as well as formal submissions by the various Ministries of Education across Canada.

The elimination of violence as a means of conflict resolution within our society will only be achieved through the continued effort and cooperation of all Canadians. It is hoped that this compilation will contribute to the momentum of current initiatives in addressing this urgent social crisis.

"VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN: Developing a National Focus on Violence Prevention Programs in the Education System": The London Family Court Clinic Inc.; Extensive Resource Package; 1989.

The Clinic focuses "on the prevention of future victims of violence. We are concerned that not enough energy, commitment, and resources are being directed to children and adolescents as our future hope of a violence free society.

We believe that communities must involve their education systems as an essential partner in developing primary prevention programs in this area. In our presentation we would like to outline:

- a) why prevention programs are essential;
- b) share some information from an innovative pilot program in our community; and
- c) offer recommendations for a national initiative in this area."

The binder includes several articles, a book, (Children Of Battered Women by Peter G. Jaffe, David A. Wolfe, and Susan Kaye Wilson, 1990), newsletters, pamphlets, as well as a copy of THUMBS DOWN, A Classroom Response to Violence Towards Women by the Canadian Teachers' Federation.

NEW/ONGOING INITIATIVES

FAMILY VIOLENCE PREVENTION PROJECT: COMMUNITY CHILD ABUSE COUNCIL OF HAMILTON-WENTWORTH

"The Community Child Abuse Council of Hamilton-Wentworth is a voluntary organization composed of community representatives from Child Welfare and Social Services agencies, Education, Health and Government who are concerned about the social issue of child abuse. The mandate of the Council is to reduce the incidence of child abuse within the community by developing and implementing prevention programs, increase public awareness with regard to child abuse and to advocate on behalf of the victims of abuse."

In addition to its current activities, the Council is in the process of developing a curriculum program "aimed at empowering students with the essential knowledge, skills, beliefs and attitudes to break the cycle of family violence (child, woman and elder abuse)..."

"Family violence is a complex social problem that cannot be altered by brief lessons scattered across the student's years in school. Rather, what is needed is a comprehensive program, with age and developmentally appropriate learnings throughout the student's school experience."

Curriculum to be developed and implementation process to have begun by 1993-94.

NOTE: The Council also delivers teacher training courses on the subject of child abuse.

DATING VIOLENCE PROGRAM; PHOTO-NOVELLA PROJECT: BATTERED WOMEN'S SUPPORT SERVICES

The Battered Women's Support Services "designed and implemented a dating violence program in 1988 specifically to address the needs of young women ages 13-19. The program serves as an educational, preventative, and early intervention service to teenage women and the professionals who work with them. It is meant to address dysfunctional relationships before they develop into abusive situations. This is done by speaking to high school students and helping agencies on the issue of dating violence, providing individual and telephone counselling and gathering and distributing existing dating violence materials.

NEW/ONGOING INITIATIVES

... Material being developed by our organization includes a new dating violence brochure entitled "Leaving Violence Behind" and a photo-novella project which is a 32 page magazine that depicts a dating violence scenario through the use of photographs."

SCHOOL-BASED PREVENTION PROGRAMS: PROVINCE OF ONTARIO

A number of communities in Ontario have developed/implemented school-based preventative programs addressing child abuse. All programs include a community preparation/consultation component. Programs range from a limited number of class units for use in specific grades to the development of comprehensive programs throughout the K-6 and 7-12 system.

CALGARY BOARD OF EDUCATION

Within the Calgary area, a number of violence prevention initiatives are taking place in the school system. Although in the past, these activities have not occurred as a result of an integrated approach to this complex social issue, the Board of Education has recently created a committee to deal with the broader issue of societal violence. Currently, the committee is "looking at defining the issue for our school system with an eye to identifying needs for inservice and materials related to the issue".

In the fall of 1991, a committee of child care counsellors from the shelter system and a psychologist from the education system will begin to develop K-12 curricula on family violence.

In the meantime, many schools/teachers make use of a number of resources currently available.

NEW/ONGOING INITIATIVES

These include: presentations in the schools by the shelters (on request); a grade 8 level program on Child Abuse Prevention available through the Red Cross in Calgary (adapted from a program developed in Vancouver); a program developed by the Junior League of Calgary entitled "Loving and Hurting" which is a three part program looking at the issues of family violence, dating violence and conflict resolution.

MANITOBA

A number of activities/programs are currently available or are undergoing development for use in Manitoba schools. There has been a stated commitment on the part of the Department to undertake a leading role in addressing the issues of family violence and conflict resolution.

Manitoba Education and Training believes that the essence of violence prevention can be achieved through the introduction of positive values and attitudes during the formative early years, and reinforced through sequential curricula that build healthy self-esteem and respect for others. The Curriculum Services Branch takes a pro-active stance in the area of gender equity and ensures that all of its textual and support materials reinforce the principles of gender, racial and religious tolerance and equality.

The new, mandatory courses "Skills for Independent Living", to be piloted in grade 9 in September, 1991, and grade 10 in September, 1992, will contain a module, "Self Management", which attempts to give students the skills necessary to handle stress, manage conflict situations and deal with crises in their lives.

In addition, the Department will soon have available a revised edition of a supplementary resource package for teachers on violence against women entitled "Violence Against Women". Developed for use with senior high school students, it is designed to increase awareness and understanding of this serious social issue.

Schools Against Violence Everywhere (S.A.V.E.) is a Manitoba-based group of individuals committed to increasing society's understanding of violence and promoting alternative choices to violence. Largely comprised of educators, the purpose of the group is to work within the educational system to coordinate, encourage and facilitate actions to reduce violence through: advocacy, education, networking, and resources.

NEW/ONGOING INITIATIVES

The Manitoba Teachers' Society provides workshops on the issue of "Violence: An Issue of Gender". In addition, MTS assists in the development of violence prevention curriculum and provides resources/bibliographies upon request. In the fall of 1991, MTS will release the booklet "Teachers' Protocol on Children in Need of Protection (Including Child Abuse)" which will be distributed to all teachers in the province.

The shelter/resource system is also very active in outreach efforts to heighten individuals' awareness of the incidence and effects of violence and abuse. Upon request, YM-YWCA Osborne House, Westman Women's Shelter, and Evolve (among others) will deliver workshops in the schools.

SASKATCHEWAN EDUCATION

"The area of family violence, including abuse of women is addressed within the optional units in the provincial health curriculum. These units have been implemented at the grade 7, 8 and 9 level. Units at the grade 11 and 12 level are being developed. It should be noted that over 75% of the province's school divisions have decided to implement the optional units which address family violence."

A number of publications regarding gender equity policy, implementation, and resource materials have been prepared and distributed "to all directors of education and school principals to assist in the planning and implementation of a gender equity program in Saskatchewan schools commencing in the 1991-92 school year. This program will promote equity for male and female students in the following areas within K-12 school system: curriculum, resource materials, instructional and assessment practices, school environment and school and community relations."

PROVINCE OF ALBERTA

The Alberta Plan for Action for Women, released by the Minister Responsible for Women's Issues, includes the following two initiatives for 1991-92:

The launching of "the second year of the "Family Violence is a Crime" public awareness campaign. The campaign supports the Solicitor General's family violence policing initiatives which were announced in October, 1990."

The development of a long-term government-wide plan to address family violence issues. Participating departments include: Family and Social Services, Health, Education, Attorney General, Solicitor General, Municipal Affairs, Women's Secretariat, Agriculture, Advanced Education, and Federal and Intergovernmental Affairs.

"WHAT KIND OF LOVE IS THIS?: A Presentation on Abusive Relationships"

"This is a cooperative prevention/education project provided by women staff of the Women's Transition House and recovering men from the Family Violence Project. Since we work with men and women in abusive relationships, we know that abusive behaviour is a serious problem that permeates our society. The problem often begins in early adolescence when young people extend their desire for emotional and physical contact beyond the family environment and into peer groups. This presentation helps young people to identify abusive behaviour and seeks to provide them with tools they can use to protect themselves and/or others from becoming abusive or abused."

SEXUAL HEALTH PROGRAM OF THE NORTHWESTERN HEALTH UNIT

A number of agency people in Dryden have been involved in the development of a "teaching package" for use in the secondary school. The package, which consists of a compilation of a variety of materials, addresses the issues of sexual exploitation (male and female), power and control, date rape, abusive partners, why men abuse, why women stay, stereotyping, where to get help, and how to help a friend. Ultimately, the Sexual Health Program would like to see such a program incorporated into the curriculum for all students.
